

Attractions at Crawford Theatre NEXT WEEK

MON.—

WILL ROGERS IN
"ONE GLORIOUS DAY"

TUES.—

PAULINE STARKE
in
"WIFE VS. WIFE"

WED.—

VIVIAN MARTIN IN
"PARDON MY FRENCH"

THUR.—

THREE COMEDIES
Last Episode Of
"WINNERS OF THE WEST"

FRI.—

WILLIAM S. HART IN
"TRAVELING ON"

SAT.—

LOCAL NEWS.

STOLEN PROPERTY RECOVERED

Wallace Smith, Melvin Bearup, and other stockmen are in town this morning from their various ranches.

Lee Hanson and Charles Montgomery of the Joyce-Pruitt force, will leave Saturday for Roswell on business for their firm.

Warren Lockhart, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lockhart had his tonsils and adenoids removed Monday, July 31, and is doing nicely at this time.

Rev. T. C. Mahan will preach at the Baptist church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, and Sunday school and the other services will be conducted at the usual hours.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hanson and daughter, Roberta Lee, will leave Tuesday on a trip to Mineral Wells, Texas, and after visiting at that place, Mrs. Hanson and baby will go on to Dallas to spend awhile with relatives.

Eddy Grove Camp, No. 5, W. O. W., is planning for a big time, similar to that pulled off in Artesia recently, for the 17th of this month. There will be a street parade with Woodmen from Hope and Artesia and afterward a large class of candidates will be initiated.

Mrs. J. J. Kircher slipped and fell yesterday morning, with bad results, spraining an ankle and forcing her to go on crutches. The accident as it usually the case, comes at a bad time as she had about completed her preparations for departure to her home in Los Angeles, and will likely be detained some days longer on that account.

"Allen, the Cleaner" has a mighty sore thumb, the result of catching that member in the steam clothes press at his cleaning establishment the first of the week. Fortunately no bones were broken, but the accident is quite painful.

For information concerning the Quick Way Stage Co., operating between Carlsbad and Roswell, call phone No. 9, or see MR. McADOO at his drug store.

TENNESSEANS HAVE PICNIC

Tennesseans residing in Carlsbad and visiting here at this time, had a picnic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Joyce last night, which was one of the pleasant events of the week and was enjoyed by the following: Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bell, son and daughter; Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Thorne and children, Reverend and Mrs. Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. Bolneys and three sons, Mrs. Ed. James, W. S. and Mrs. Moore, Howard Moore, Mrs. Hartman and Margaret Judge, and Mrs. W. J. Lamb. Mrs. Sayre, Howard Prater and Miss Lovett. Other guests of the evening who are not Tennesseans were Mrs. A. A. Davis, Mrs. Myron Clark and son, Houston, Madame Thorne, and Miss English. The lawn around the spacious Joyce home was utilized and a dinner served picnic style, was a pleasant feature of the gathering.

The Current is sorry to learn of the indisposition of Mrs. Robert Lapsley which prevented her going on her proposed journey to Tamaqua, Mexico. She has decided to remain in this country until the first of September, hoping that by that time she will be entirely recovered. Her cousin, Roy Forehand, will accompany her to Arizona where she will be met by her husband when she decides to go.

Mrs. Craig of Roswell, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dearborn, this week. The lady formerly resided in Carlsbad, and has since been a frequent and welcome visitor to the city, in company with her daughter, Miss Lou Ella. The Current is pleased to note the young lady's success in having completed a course at the State Normal at Silver City and will teach school in Chavez county this fall.

Miss Fay Wilcox, of McKinney, Texas, has been a guest at the Ares ranch in the mountains for nearly a month. The young lady is a college classmate of Mrs. Albert Ares, and is a charming girl to meet. She and Mrs. Ares came down from the mountains Monday and will probably remain in town until the rodeo at Hope, which they plan to attend.

Mrs. Edgar Williams and children and her cousin, Miss Josephine ... left for the Williams ranch near Lovington, last Sunday. Josephine will make a visit to the ranch with her kinfolk before school opens.

Postmaster John Wells returned from a two weeks stay at the Mayo Brothers Hospital in Rochester, Minnesota, he going to see a famous surgeon for his health which has been bad for some years.

"Aunt Sallie" Slaughter returned yesterday from various points in California where she spent three weeks, and is already hard at work looking after the sick folks in the hospital, where she has been in charge for over a year.

Misses Matilda and Catherine Gerlach and Mrs. Ben Gerlach and baby, Ross Marie, left Womelsdorf for the lower valley, where they will visit until the first of the week, both of the young ladies having their vacation at this time.

Lige Mitchell, the transfer and moving man, left Monday for Lakewood, and has taken the contract to move the house belonging to V. L. Sullivan at that place, to a lot in Carlsbad, where it will be fitted up tip for a tenant house.

When General Custer's Fighting Seventh charged down upon Chief Black Kettle's Cheyennes on the Washita in the time of "Garryowen" that cold November morning in 1868, at his side rode a man whom the Indians recognized, and they shouted to each other "Look out, for Red Neck! He's dead shot!"

Clark played an important part in Custer's campaigns that year, but his most valuable services were performed as a scout for Gen. Nelson Miles in the war with the Cheyennes, Arapahoes, Comanches and Kiowas in 1874. His greatest feat was his part in the rescue of the German sisters, two little white girls who had been captured when their parents were murdered by raiding Cheyennes in their Kansas home.

Two of the girls, Adelaide and Julia Germaine, were recaptured from the Cheyennes when Lt. Frank Baldwin struck the camp of Chief Gray Beard so suddenly that the Indians had no chance to kill their prisoners, as they usually did. The girls informed General Miles that two of their sisters, Catherine and Sophie Germaine, still were held by another band of the Cheyennes.

Ben Clark immediately set out to discover where they were. After a long search he found that they were in the camp of Chief Stone Cliff. General Miles secured a photograph of Julia and Adelaide and on the back of it he wrote a message to the other sisters telling them that every effort was being made to rescue them. He gave this message to a friendly Indian who visited Stone Cliff's camp and unobserved by the Indians, slipped it into the hand of one of the girls.

The general next sent a message to Stone Cliff, demanding his surrender and telling him that no mercy would be shown his warriors unless the German girls were brought to the nearest army post alive and unharmed. In a short time Stone Cliff came in to the Cheyenne agency, surrendered his white captives and all four sisters were reunited. Ben Clark's scouting had not been in vain.

When the Cheyennes were finally subdued, Clark settled down at Fort Reno, Okla., with them. He became their interpreter in all their dealings with the white men, and the Cheyennes came to honor "Red Neck" as much as they had feared him when he was fighting against them. Later he was custodian of old Fort Reno, and when he died a few years ago, after more than 50 years in the government service, his passing was mourned by white and red men alike.

Mrs. J. J. Kircher and daughters, Evelyn Monroe and Mary Kathryn, expect to leave for their home in Huntington Park, California, going the latter part of next week, in order to be there a few days before the opening of school. Mary Kathryn will enter kindergarten in Miles Avenue school, Huntington Park. They have had a delightful stay among their old friends and neighbors but are glad to join the husband and family in their California home.

The general test sent a message to Stone Cliff, demanding his surrender and telling him that no mercy would be shown his warriors unless the German girls were brought to the nearest army post alive and unharmed. In a short time Stone Cliff came in to the Cheyenne agency, surrendered his white captives and all four sisters were reunited. Ben Clark's scouting had not been in vain.

When the Cheyennes were finally subdued, Clark settled down at Fort Reno, Okla., with them. He became their interpreter in all their dealings with the white men, and the Cheyennes came to honor "Red Neck" as much as they had feared him when he was fighting against them. Later he was custodian of old Fort Reno, and when he died a few years ago, after more than 50 years in the government service, his passing was mourned by white and red men alike.

Congress is still talking about the soldier bonus. Talk is cheap—except to the tax payers.

WHITE SLIPPERS AND OXFORDS

This Is The REAL SEASON For WHITE FOOT WEAR, And We Are Placing Our Entire Stock Of WHITE SLIPPERS and OXFORDS In KEDS and CANVASS.

On Sale at Remarkably Low Prices

NEW STOCK

NEW STYLES

NO SHODDY, SHELF WORN GOODS

Don't Delay In Looking This Line Over
SALE STARTS SATURDAY MORNING

Peoples Mercantile Co.

Where things are new

Stories of Great Scouts

By Elmo Scott Watson

© Western Newspaper Union

BEN CLARK, WHOM THE INDIANS CALLED "MILE NO-TO-WAH."

When General Custer's Fighting Seventh charged down upon Chief Black Kettle's Cheyennes on the Washita in the time of "Garryowen" that cold November morning in 1868, at his side rode a man whom the Indians recognized, and they shouted to each other "Look out, for Red Neck! He's dead shot!"

Clark played an important part in Custer's campaigns that year, but his most valuable services were performed as a scout for Gen. Nelson Miles in the war with the Cheyennes, Arapahoes, Comanches and Kiowas in 1874. His greatest feat was his part in the rescue of the German sisters, two little white girls who had been captured when their parents were murdered by raiding Cheyennes in their Kansas home.

Two of the girls, Adelaide and Julia Germaine, were recaptured from the Cheyennes when Lt. Frank Baldwin struck the camp of Chief Gray Beard so suddenly that the Indians had no chance to kill their prisoners, as they usually did. The girls informed General Miles that two of their sisters, Catherine and Sophie Germaine, still were held by another band of the Cheyennes.

Ben Clark immediately set out to discover where they were. After a long search he found that they were in the camp of Chief Stone Cliff. General Miles secured a photograph of Julia and Adelaide and on the back of it he wrote a message to the other sisters telling them that every effort was being made to rescue them. He gave this message to a friendly Indian who visited Stone Cliff's camp and unobserved by the Indians, slipped it into the hand of one of the girls.

The general next sent a message to Stone Cliff, demanding his surrender and telling him that no mercy would be shown his warriors unless the German girls were brought to the nearest army post alive and unharmed. In a short time Stone Cliff came in to the Cheyenne agency, surrendered his white captives and all four sisters were reunited. Ben Clark's scouting had not been in vain.

When the Cheyennes were finally subdued, Clark settled down at Fort Reno, Okla., with them. He became their interpreter in all their dealings with the white men, and the Cheyennes came to honor "Red Neck" as much as they had feared him when he was fighting against them. Later he was custodian of old Fort Reno, and when he died a few years ago, after more than 50 years in the government service, his passing was mourned by white and red men alike.

Congress is still talking about the soldier bonus. Talk is cheap—except to the tax payers.

On the 29th of July, there was started between Roswell and Carlsbad a new stage line known as the Quick Way Stage Line. The line is headed by W. A. Brown and E. W. Jordan of Roswell.

On the 28th of July, a party of Roswell's boosters came to Carlsbad bringing the band along, stopping in several towns along the line, playing and advertising the new auto stage line. The party was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Bailey. The band played several selections on the streets after they had lunch at the Crawford. About 4:30 they went to our swimming pool where they enjoyed a nice plunge. The party left for Roswell about 5:30. We wish the new stage line much success.

Mr. Greer, the cotton buyer, who has been here for a week or more left for his old home in Nacogdoches, Texas, going Monday and expecting to stay there for some days.

Mrs. George Bond is enjoying the company of a sister, Mrs. Ostrom, of Deering, who will make a short stay at the Bond home in North Carlsbad.

Sam Moskin and wife motored to Roswell Saturday night and Sam returned Tuesday morning, leaving his wife there for a longer visit with her parents and sisters, and with little Jane, the four-year-old daughter who seems to have taken up her residence with her grandparents.

Ben Clark immediately set out to discover where they were. After a long search he found that they were in the camp of Chief Stone Cliff. General Miles secured a photograph of Julia and Adelaide and on the back of it he wrote a message to the other sisters telling them that every effort was being made to rescue them. He gave this message to a friendly Indian who visited Stone Cliff's camp and unobserved by the Indians, slipped it into the hand of one of the girls.

The general next sent a message to Stone Cliff, demanding his surrender and telling him that no mercy would be shown his warriors unless the German girls were brought to the nearest army post alive and unharmed. In a short time Stone Cliff came in to the Cheyenne agency, surrendered his white captives and all four sisters were reunited. Ben Clark's scouting had not been in vain.

When the Cheyennes were finally subdued, Clark settled down at Fort Reno, Okla., with them. He became their interpreter in all their dealings with the white men, and the Cheyennes came to honor "Red Neck" as much as they had feared him when he was fighting against them. Later he was custodian of old Fort Reno, and when he died a few years ago, after more than 50 years in the government service, his passing was mourned by white and red men alike.

Congress is still talking about the soldier bonus. Talk is cheap—except to the tax payers.

Messrs. Bud and Tom Caviness, of Gravelly, Arkansas, came in from there last week Tuesday, and remained until Monday of this week, when they left for their homes. They are nephews of W. T. Caviness and visited with his family and the other folks in the Ott section who came from Arkansas. They were taken out to see various places of interest in the valley, and were shown real Arkansas hospitality while here. Both gentlemen expressed their pleasure at their visit and wished they might find locations here on which to make their homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Hardisty are the parents of a little daughter which was born the 23rd of July. Her name is Ella Mae and she is being made heartily welcome by many friends of her fortunate parents.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY
Sunday morning services at eleven o'clock at Woman's Club building.

The public is cordially invited.
Sunday School at ten o'clock.

HIS FEET HURT
HE IS NOW HORBLING TO

Dave Mitchell's Shoe Shop

A good place to have your Shoes Fixed

AGAIN FOR SATURDAY

CANDY IN SOUTH WINDOW

30c. lb.

The Sweet Shop

Renick & Grubaugh

Congress is still talking about the soldier bonus. Talk is cheap—except to the tax payers.